Last night MANHATTAN HOUSE / AVENUE INSIDER.COM celebrated the MODERN COLLECTION with Signature Residences by JAMES HUNIFORD, CELERIE KEMBLE and RITA KONIG. The landmarked Manhattan House, the iconic, Mid-Century residential condominium, at 200 E 66th Street in the Upper East Side, recently teamed with renowned Interior Designers James Huniford, Celerie Kemble and Rita Konig. Each of the three designers created one residence at the building. These residences were unveiled at last night's event and all are part of the Manhattan House's newly unveiled The Modern Collection, brand-new residences available at the building that were created in response to a growing demand for larger homes in the city.

James Huniford's The Modern9 is "a three-bedroom, three-bath 3,351-square-foot space featuring a library with wet bar, windowed kitchen, breakfast room, and powder room, is designed in the spirit of Manhattan House's architect, 20th Century icon Gordon Bunshaft."

Celerie Kemble's The Modern Manhattan is "a three-bedroom, three-bath, 1,861-square-foot floor-through residence with dual exposures."

Rita Konig's The Modern Penthouse is "a one-bedroom, 1.5-bath 1,151-square-foot light-filled corner penthouse residence with a 368-square-foot landscaped wraparound terrace offering views of the Manhattan skyline that also frame the dining and sitting rooms."

"We are pleased with all three designer's interpretations of homes at Manhattan House and are impressed with their unique style and design in each residence," said Brian Fallon, a partner of O'Connor Capital Partners and president of Manhattan House. "These three signature-designed residences reflect the architectural integrity of Manhattan House and provide an interesting, comfortable and chic living environment for the modern New Yorker."
